

Don Neale, Kingscliff and District Business Chamber and Denise Singleton, owner of Maddie and Lil, draw the first 'Love your local @ Kingscliff' monthly winner.

Loyal shoppers rewarded @ Kingscliff

Kingscliff residents and small business owners have thrown their support behind the 'Love Your Local at Kingscliff' campaign with more than 1000 loyalty cards handed out in the first month.

Debra Dickinson of Kingscliff, a regular at Zingara and the Kingscliff Newsagency, is the first winner of the monthly $100 food and beverage prize from the Kingscliff Beach Bowls Club.

Shoppers can collect stamps on the loyalty cards from local traders then complete a quiz to go into the draw for the monthly prize.

"The 'shop local' campaign has been really well received by local residents; everyone is pitching in to support our businesses and build that community spirit," Kingscliff and District Business Chamber's Don Neale said.

The campaign promotes shopper loyalty as the Kingscliff Bridge over Cudgen Creek will be closed until December 2016 and work on the Kingscliff Foreshore Revitalisation project along Marine Parade is set to start early in 2017.

'Love Your Local' is joint initiative of the Kingscliff Business Chamber and Tweed Shire Council.

Praise for Aboriginal Advisory Committee

A long-running Aboriginal advisory committee fostering communications between Tweed Shire Council and the indigenous community has been showcased as a glowing example for other NSW communities.

Representatives of the Tweed Shire Aboriginal Advisory Committee were guest speakers at the recent three-day NSW Local Government Aboriginal Network conference, hosted by Council in Tweed Heads, to highlight the group's achievements since it was established 20 years ago.

AAC representative Leweena Williams said the group had achieved a rare level of communication and understanding between the indigenous community and Tweed Shire Council staff and elected councillors, built on the committee's hard work, dedication and determination to have their voices heard.

Ms Williams said there were very few similar groups in NSW and many other indigenous communities had very little ongoing communication with their local councils.

The committee brings together delegates from a range of local Aboriginal organisations including land councils, aged and health care, education and Tweed Shire Council representatives.

Tweed Coast Road closure extended until end of the week

Council has extended the closure of Tweed Coast Road at Pottsville, between Boronia and Elanora avenues, to the end of this week (Friday 9 September) at the latest as the task to install new stormwater drainage pipes beneath the road slowed due to an unmapped sewer main blocking the way.

Traffic will continue to be diverted via Boronia and Elanora avenues before rejoining Tweed Coast Road north of the worksite. However, Council workers were working at the weekend to try to get the cross connection completed and the road reopened sooner.

Last week when the trench across the road was first opened, workers discovered an unmapped sewer main directly in the line of pipe-laying. To go through it, they had to shut down a nearby sewer pump station, empty the sewer main and cut a section out to allow the stormwater pipes through.

The sewer main then had to be re-routed above the stormwater and re-connected.

The main was the first of three sewer mains directly in the line of work, as well as electricity, Telstra and optic fibre connections. The multitude of services in the area has slowed the entire drainage upgrade since it began in late April.

The upgrade is required to provide a pathway for surface water to escape the low-lying area when it rains. In 2005, during a flood, the area effectively became a shallow dam. Since then, Council has been working to improve the drainage capacity. In 2010, it upgraded the drainage north of Rajungra Avenue and now it is working to complete the drainage upgrade south of Banksia Avenue.

Until Tweed Coast Road reopens, both the bus stop and Telstra public phone adjacent to the Pottsville North Caravan Park will be out of service. Buses will continue to pick up and drop off at a temporary stop north of Boronia Avenue for the duration of the road closure.

Both of these services will be restored when the road is reopened.

Need to create some extra space in your home or shed, not to mention a bit more cash?

One week remains to register as a participant in this year's Second Hand Saturday, the biggest garage sale event on the NSW North Coast.

Households and community groups have until 14 September to register their garage sale for this year's event, which will be held on Saturday 24 September, which is second sale day on 1 October.

Hundreds of households, neighbourhoods, schools and community organisations participate each year, receiving free listing online and in newspaper advertisements to attract buyers to their garage sales.

Visit www.secondhandsaturday.com.au for full details on how to have a sale, or where to shop to find great bargains on pre-loved items.

Winners from the organics survey

Thank you for those residents that completed the voluntary survey for the new organics collection service coming in July 2017 (not to be provided to large multi-unit developments or rural properties).

Your feedback was invaluable. Our four winners received a $50 gift certificate to Murwillumbah Farmers' Market. Congratulations Amanda Jones, Shannon Finnigan, Evelyn Green and David McNaught (pictured right).

Study gains access to peak forum

Members of the Tweed Shire Equal Access Advisory Committee shared the stage with some of Australia's foremost experts of accessibility, when they were invited to speak at a major conference in Sydney last week.

The committee's recent audit of accessible toilets in the Tweed, dubbed the 'Dunny Run', brought many changes to assist people with impeded mobility, but it also earned an invitation to speak at the Universal Design Conference in Sydney on 30-31 August. Committee members Wendy Gilbert and Suzi Hudson, with pre-recorded video input by Una Cowdroy, outlined how their novel tour put Tweed Shire's 57 accessible toilet cubicles under rigorous scrutiny.

Ms Hudson, who has impaired vision, and Ms Cowdroy, who uses an electric wheelchair, got first-hand experience of the real accessibility of those facilities, which led by many improvements to meet Australian standards and added 31 toilets to the National Public Toilet Map.

Council is currently inviting nominations for this year's Tweed Shire Access and Inclusion Awards, recognising individuals and organisations for their efforts and achievements to make the Tweed more accessible and inclusive for everyone.

Visit www.tweed.nsw.gov.au/AccessInclusionAwards for more information.
